NEW OPPORTUNITIES: PRIMARY CARE NURSES – COMMUNITY HOME CARE

See the difference your care can have!

Do you want to see the difference your care can have in the community working with our newest Primary Care Nursing (PCN) team? Vancouver Community is actively recruiting for Primary Care Nurses (PCNs) to partner with physicians to care for our highly complex older adult (70+) population, including those approaching end of life. PCNs are RNs or RPNs by profession and their approach to care is focused on gaining a thorough understanding of the client's environment, needs and constraints that impact quality of life for our frail seniors.

About Primary Care Nurses – Community Home Care

PCNs will work across three CHC sites in Vancouver – Three Bridges, South and Pacific Spirit and work with a select population of the most complex clients to coordinate ongoing care needs, implement clinical interventions and evaluate client outcomes based on goals of care.

Partner with clients for quality care outcomes

PCNs work with clients and families, their physician and community health services to provide quality care outcomes and enable individuals to receive the majority of their care needs in the community by:

- ✓ Facilitating continuity of care between physicians, acute & community, supporting seamless care throughout the system;
- ✓ Coordinating intensive care in the community with extended hours to meet client and family needs;
- ✓ Providing intensive support, including clients facing end of life, proactively identifying client and family needs to mitigate crisis-driven presentations to the emergency department;
- ✓ Developing a closer relationship with the GP; and
- ✓ Coordinating timely access to other services in the community.

See the difference your care can have and join VCH's innovative PCN team today! Available opportunities include reference numbers: 085067, 085068, 085070. There will be an extensive education and orientation plan to support nurses in these new roles.
